East and West

Western Europe is wetter than Eastern Europe. This is because countries like Britain, France and Portugal are closer to the Atlantic Ocean. The air above the ocean is wet, so when the wind comes from the west, it brings a lot of rain to these western countries.

In summer, Eastern Europe is usually hotter than the west, but in winter it is much colder. Why does this happen? Again, the answer is because of the Atlantic Ocean. Water changes its temperature slowly, but the land changes very quickly.

In summer, the ocean is cooler than the land, so it keeps Western Europe cooler than the east. In winter, the ocean is warmer than the land, so it keeps Western Europe warmer.

The countries in Eastern Europe are further from the ocean, so it doesn't affect the temperatures there. It doesn't cool the land in the summer, and it doesn't warm the land in the winter.

This also means that the seasons are different in eastern and Western Europe. The temperature of the land changes quickly, so the weather changes from a hot summer to a cold winter quickly, too. Spring and autumn are short, but summer and winter are longer. In Western Europe the temperature changes slowly, so spring and autumn are longer and summer and winter are shorter.

- a) Eastern Europe is drier than Western Europe. T/F
- b) In summer, Eastern Europe is very hot. T/F
- c) Seasons in Western Europe and Eastern Europe aren't the same. T/F
- d) Spring and autumn are short in Western Europe. T/F
- e) In winter, ocean is colder than the land. T/F
